COUNCIL HEARS PLANS FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION

GRASS VALLEY: The city council received the City Planning Commission's recommendations regarding new construction in the business district, at its meeting Tuesday evening.

The commission recommended that the new bowling alleys to be constructed on Bank Street, in a quonset hut type of building, be set back from the sidewalk line sufficiently far to permit widening the street later on.

The commission recommended that Watt Park, under its new name of the Nevada County Fair Grounds, be permitted to run its sewer line into the new sewer system without fee and that homes in the vicinity be permitted to do likewise on payment of the usual fee.

Another recommendation was that Gilbert Cramer, owner of the Union Terminal tract, be permitted to build across Wolf Creek from Bank Street to Colfax Avenue. The council took the recommendations under advisement.

McGuire and McGuire, city engineers reported that Thomas and Whipple, construction engineers of Palo Alto, had concluded plans and specifications for the new sewage plant, and recommended the firm be paid their fee of $5,000.

The grade of the thoroughfares, mostly in the residential districts, are being reduced to the grade of the old horse and buggy days of Colusa.

According to Street Superintendent Roy Triplett more than 1000 cubic yards of new river gravel has been sread out on several of the main arteries of travel already and mixing and oiling processes are now under way. Seal coating will follow.

When completed all but the main highway streets of Market, 10th, and Bridge will have been improved by the city, without aid of outside contractor.

AUBURN: The Placer County Board of Supervisors passed an ordinance forbidding the use of firearms in an area which includes the boundary of the French Meadows Game Reserve.

The action by the board was taken following the receipt of strong protests from sportsmens' and other groups interested in conserving wild life when word was received of the commission's action.

ANCHO-ERIE MINE PROPERTIES ARE EXPANDING FAST

By ED C. UREN

NEVADA CITY: The Ancho Erie, now one of the most active mines in the county, has expanded its holdings until it controls some 1100 acres in the Graniteville area. It has taken over the Keller, the Republic from Wm. McLean, the National and the Culbertson, with a total length of over two miles on the strike of the veins.

The present No. 4 adit from Poorman Creek reaches the Ancho vein in 2100 feet. Drifting on the vein has advanced to 1800 feet, which is 600 feet south of the old workings 500 feet vertically above.

With approximately 1300 feet of backs to the surface south of the old workings there still remains an estimated 300,000 tons of ore on this shoot above No. 4 Tunnel. How far the shoot extends in depth is problematical, but it has been diamond drilled to a depth of 397 feet.

The Company has so far mined about 35,000 tons of ore above No. 4 and is at present crushing at the rate of 2500 tons a month. The ore averages in value about $12 per ton, with about 40 per cent of the values in the sulphides, which run about $300 per ton.

The ore is reduced by primary and secondary crushers to the ball mill and Fagergren flotation cells, the sulphides being cyanided at the mine with a loss claimed to be less than three per cent.

The Ancho Vein stands almost vertical, is from 3 to 12 feet wide and the distribution of values remarkably uniform throughout the shoot, which is over a thousand feet long. But little timbering is necessary. Working costs, including milling, is said to be under $5. Mining conditions, free from hoisting, pumping and mucking, makes this property the most ideal set up possible for low cost mining.

The company is now excavating for a power plant at the proposed No. 5 Tunnel on Poormans Creek, about three-fourths of a mile south of No. 4. This cross cut will be 5760 feet in length and 490 feet vertical below No. 4.

A new 100 ton mill, duplicating the present one, is also under construction and will increase the capacity to 200 tons per day. Forty men are now employed and accommodations are being readied for sixty as soon as No. 5 Adit gets under way.

The No. 5 Tunnel will not only cut five known parallel veins but will also tap the Erie Vein, which has been drilled from No. 4 and shows a width of 18 feet of solid quartz. In fact, No. 5 is expected to make available from known deposits at least another 400,000 tons of ore.

The company has recently purchased 100,000 surplus drill bits and as soon as additional equipment becomes available they plan to start development on the Republic vein some 200 feet below McLean's lower tunnel on the west side of Poorman Creek.

The Ancho Erie is 26 miles from Nevada City. A new road four miles in length follows up Poorman's Creek above the Spanish Mine, making an all winter route. The old road up Gaston Ridge reached elevations of 5500 feet, which is 1500 feet higher than the new route and which snow conditions made practically impassable during winter months.

Fred Anderson, who is responsible for taking over and developing this property and who holds a substantial interest in it, is manager and resides at Nevada City.

Engaged in Additional Operations

As separate operations not connected with the Ancho Erie, Mr. Anderson and associates have recently taken over the Red Cross group of six claims at Omega from the Wm. H. Martin heirs and Benjamin Hall. Three Huntington mills are being installed for immediate operation.

The Red Cross is a low grade massive quartz and stringer zone which was last operated in a rather desultory way about 1905 by Frank Enzensperger. Earlier operations with Huntington mills were quite successful as the ore is free milling and does not require fine grinding.

They have also acquired the Ocean Star, Columbia and German Mines, contiguous to the Red Cross on the north and three miles up the South Yuba above Washington. These properties are now being tested by diamond drilling but no plans for their development have as yet been [illegible]

CHAMBER OPPOSES ORDINANCE

NEVADA CITY: The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday evening went on record as opposing a city ordinance, based on the county ordinance which bans slot machines, after Councilman Arthur B. Innis had declared the proposed ordinance was too strict.

Innis asked the chamber to send a delegation to Thursday's special meeting of the city council, when the ordinance will be considered. George C. Hansen, chamber president, named as a committee to attend the meeting; Ray Spickelmier, Harold Deeter, Cecil Holmes, Emmett B. Gallagher and Al Irby.

H. F. Sofge, chamber secretary, under a motion that was adopted, was directed to get out placards, urging citizens to vote "no" in the election called next Monday, to determine whether the parking meters that were installed on a six months trial shall be taken away, or remain.

Preliminary plans for the Fourth of July celebration in Nevada City in 1948 were sketched. Mrs. Doris Foley, president of the Nevada County Historical Society, offered the cooperation and support of that organization for the celebration.

The airport committee reported that the words "Nevada City" had been lettered on the hangar at the airport. President Hansen reported that the children's playground project was under way; that the City Council had given him assurance that they would try to have the streets washed, refuse cans placed throughout the business area, and the city pound improved.

NEVADA CITY: The Tahoe National Forest headquarters reported yesterday that Richard A. Buckley, 68, an old age pensioner from Shione, Oklahoma, had pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace R. N. Little of Truckee, to smoking in a restricted area.

The court's sentence of 30 days in jail was suspended due to age and illness of the culprit. Buckley was the last man seen in the vicinity of Boca Dam just before the big fire started which swept from Boca to the California-Nevada line near

THE SMALL NEWSPAPER

"In every weekly and small daily newspaper is gathered up the aspirations of that town—it's desire to be governed well, to progress, to show as a merchandising center and a cultural center."

So declared David Howe, President of the American Newspaper Publishers Association in a recent radio address.

It seems to us that Mr. Howe has touched on a very important point. A newspaper, especially in a small town, is really a community enterprise regardless of who owns it. Certainly, it cannot be successful unless it gains a reasonable degree of support from local residents. And it is not worthy of success unless it serves both to guide and reflect public opinion, arouses interest in civic problems and worthy community activities, helps citizens to know and understand one another better and becomes a unifying influence in the community.

A newspaper must be something more than a channel for news—important though that function is. It must also act as a middleman for those who have something to sell and those who want to buy. It must serve as a public forum where ideas can be exchanged. It must function as a chronicler of local events—club and lodge meetings, civic gatherings, social and polltical affairs, theater and entertainment programs, school activities and so on.

It must record the vital happenings in family life—births, marriages and deaths, together with the conduct, good and bad, of individuals as that conduct touches the public interest.

Yes, a newspaper is more than printed sheets of paper. It is more than printed sheets of paper. It is more than the presses or the personnel that pubish it. It is a mirror in which the people of a community see themselves, their affairs and the world.

MARRIAGE OF 12-YEAR-OLD GIRL IN QUESTION

AUBURN—Steps will be taken to have the marriage of a 12 year old Newcastle bride Sandra Manwell Shaw, annulled. This was revealed at a juvenile court hearing.

Mrs. Margaret Manwell, mother of the girl, told the court proceedings already have been commenced by herself and the girl's father, Malcolm Manwell of Lincoln.

Judge Ralph McGee of Amador County, who heard the case, decided to leave the girl in the custody of her parents.

The decision was made after it was learned by the court the parents had effected a reconciliation. They formerly were separated and a divorce action, brought by Mrs. Manwell, was pending in the superior court here.

Probation Officer Charles Allen, who originally filed a petition asking that the girl be made a ward of the court, recommended that the petition be dismissed as, he said, further investigation had convinced him the parents are capable of taking care of the child. Deputy District Atorney Clarence Hawkins concurred.

At the hearing Probation Officer Allen produced a marriage certificate, showing that the child had been married to Charles Shaw, a navy veteran, in Carson City on July 30th.

The couple were arrested in Santa Cruz on August 2nd and the girl said Shaw has been returned to Reno, Nev., to answer a charge of embezzling an automobile across the state line.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

We had a poor week on the claim. Only took out eleven ounces. The pay seems to be in a streak about four feet wide up the center; still. eleven ounces is not so bad after all. I get the nicest letters from home; think I may go back in the spring. I sent dad a thousand dollars for himself and told him I did not want him or mother to work hard any more. Wrote him to get a hired girl for her and if he bought the Slocum farm to just lay back and boss the two. We can stand hired men at twelve dollars a month. Some of the claims down below us are doing very well, but none are paying as much as ours.

(NOTE: "Coyoting" was a local descriptive term of a mining method which meant the sinking of shafts, and running small drifts from the bottom in the berdock in all directions until the excavated banks became dangerous, when the shaft would be abandoned and another sunk close by. It was dangerous work and many a miner lost his life by caving banks. It was the direct precursor of regular drift mining, when the tunnels were systematically timbered.)

CHAPTER FIVE

JANUARY 19, 1851—Have not written much about Pard lately, but he is a great comfort. He is a different man than when we joined fortunes, doesn't sulk and get moods as he did at first, and I notice he doesn't tear up his letters any more. He says it is all on account of our dog Jack who came along just at the right time, but that is all nonsense, although it is wonderful how much they think of each other. The rain is over, the nights are cold and frosty, but the grass is growing and wild flowers are blooming. When I think of the old Norfolk place, which at this time of the year is buried under big snowdrifts, I don't feel as if I cared to leave this country. It seems a pity that when it is all worked out there will be nothing to stay for. Pard has a different opinion. He predicts that they will grow wheat and fruit in the valleys and Caliornia fwill be a rich and big state, and he tells me that he is thinking of investing five thousand dollars in real estate at the Bay. The claim paid eighteen ounces this last week.

JANUARY 26, 1851—There was a lively time over at Selby Flat Wednesday night. The landlord gave a ball at the hotel. All the women were there—seven of them—and about two hundred men. They had a fiddler—Mart Simonson; one of the best I ever heard. It was great sport for a while, but towards morning some of the men got too much gin aboard and a quarrel started about the right to dance with one of the Missouri girls. Pistols were drawn ,the lights put out, at least a hundred shots fired; but, funny enough, only one man was hurt—Sam Creeley, who was hit in the leg. I went out through a window and did not wait to see the finish. It was too exciting for me.

Had a long letter from dad. He has bought the Slocum farm in my name, but now it' mine I would not go back and work on it as I did on the old place under any circumstances. I couldn't content myself. Pard laughs at me and says how about that little song I used to sing:

" little farm, a little wife,
A dozen babies, a happy life."

A foot of snow fell last week, but it soon melted off. Claim still paying well.

FEBRUARY 2, 1851—The town went clean crazy this afternoon. I would not have believed that white men could have made such fools of themselves if I had not been there. When I was over in Nevada yesterday I saw on the front of Caldwell's store a big poster which said there was going to be a grand fight between a ferocious grizzly bear and the champion fighting jackass of the state ,the scrap to take place Sunday afternoon in a valley just beyond the ridge on the trail to Centerville (Grass Valley). The bill claimed that the jack had whipped two bulls and killed a mountain lion in previous fights at Sonora, and was expected to be a fair match for the grizzly. Most everybody thought it was a sell, but we found out that a ring had been built and preparations made for the fight. I was curious to see it and rode down to the valley in the afternoon along with about all the rest of the population.

Sure enough, there was a stockade about forty feet in diameter, made of split pine stakes driven in the ground and bound together around the top with strips of rawhide. It looked pretty weak to hold a big grizzly, but one of the showmen said the jack would keep the bear too busy for him to think of breaking away, so we concluded to chance it. A large cage held the beast, a rtap door opening into the ring, and we could hear the bear growling, although the chinks were stopped up so that nobody could see the prisoner. The fighting jackass was hitched to one of the stakes and for looks he didn't show to whip a sick pup, let alone a fierce grizzly; but the boss was willing to take odds in his favor, although no one wanted any bets on the game. A rope about two hundred feet from the ring stretched around the stockade. It cost a dollar to get inside, and as at least two thusand rustled for logs and stumps to stand on and paid the money it was a pretty profitable speculation. After waiting an hour or more the crowd grew impatient and yeled for the show to begin, but the boss would not start it until a lot of outsiders, who had climbed trees and were trying to see the fight free had put up the same price as the rest of us, and, as we all thought that was fair, they had to pungle.

SCHOOL BOARD PLANS TO ERECT TEMPORARY CLASSROOM BUILDING

GRASS VALLEY: The Grass Valley School Board, faced with a greatly increased enrollment when schools reopen next month, have asked a local contractor for cost estimates of a prefabricated school building to take care of the city's needs.

The board debated whether permanent construction should be undertaken in view of possible union with the Nevada City Unified School District. The new class rooms in the main are needed for elementary school children. The board decided that something must be done immediately to provide room for what is expected to be a greatly increased enrollment.

COUNTY TAX PICTURE

Every cent of county wide property tax rate levied in Nevada county for 1947-48 will bring in approximately $2240, about 13 per cent more than the $1982 which a cent of county tax rate raised for last year, California taxpayers' association estimated today.

Productivity of each cent of tax rate for 1947-48 is estimated on the pre-equalization value of taxable property in the county of $22,402,450, of which 13,388,190 is the valuation fixed by the county assessor and $9,014,260 by the state board of equalization, the association said. Last year's valuation of taxable property in the county totalled $19,824,750.

GALA WEDDING FOR MISS BARBARA DEAL, GORDON FOREMAN

NEVADA CITY: A lovely wedding was celebrated at 2 P.M. Sunday, August 10th, with St. Patrick's Church at Grass Valley as the setting, when Barbara Ann Deal became the bride of Gordon H. Foreman.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Deal and the late Charles Deal, of Grass Valley. Young Foreman is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Foreman of Nevada City. Father Patrick O'Reilly performed the ceremony before a large gathering of friends and relatives.

The bride was radiant in a gown of brocaded white nylon, made with a sweetheart neckline, long fitted sleeves, full gathered skirt and sweeping train. She wore a fingertip veil caught by clusters of orange blossoms.

Instead of the convention bouquet, Miss Deal carried a white prayer book, loaned by Mrs. Caroline Hotchkiss, close friend and neighbor. Bound to the prayer book was an exquisite white orchid from which fell a shower of white bouvardia and white satin ribbons.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, James Deal.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Patricia Bradley, as matron of honor, attired in a pink organdy dress, embroidered in white, with bouffant skirt finished with a flat bustle effect, crownless pink picture hat with velvet streamers. Mrs. Bradley carried an old fashioned nosegay of petal pink carnations.

The bridesmaids were Miss Lillian McConnell and Miss Merle Ostrom. Both dressed in blue styled in the same fashion as the matron of honor, and carried old fashioned nose-gays of blue carnations.

Little Judy Dwyer, adorable in pink marquisette with pink satin bows in her curls, acted as flower girl, strewing rose petals from a pink basket.

The groom was attended by his brother, Stanley Foreman, as best man. The ushers were Albert Gilbert and Glen Rowe.

The church was beuatifully decorated by Sister Felicies with banks of white and pink gladioli and white candles on the altars.

Before the ceremony, Miss Pauline Patterson, cousin of the bride, sang Ave Maria. She was accompanied on the organ by Richard Hale. Mrs. Deal, the bride's mother, chose a pink and black print dress with black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was pink carnations.

Mrs. Foreman, the groom's mother, wore a teal blue gown, with black accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the garden of the groom's parents, at 123 Nevada Street, Nevada City. A bouffet lunch was served at a bride's table delicately appointed in pastel shades. The new Mrs. Foreman, with the help of her husband, cut and served to a host of friends, a beautiful and delicious wedding cake.

The Foreman home was decorated with pink and white gladioli. One room was devoted to the array of beautiful wedding gifts. One of these gifts was a two week's honeymoon at Clear Lake Highlands, in a charming cottage belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cooper of Piedmont.

After the reception, the happy couple left for this charming spot. The bride traveled in a Navy blue suit. Pale blue accessories and orchid corsage. Upon their return, the newlyweds will reside near Auburn.

The new Mrs. Foreman was educated in the Grass Valley schools and has been employed by the Ben Franklin stores for the last few years.

Gordon Foreman attended the Nevada City schools, and at the outbreak of war, joined the Navy. After comleting a course in radio, he was stationed at Pearl Harbor for 27 months. After his discharge from the Navy, he accepted a position at DeWitt Hospital near Auburn.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding and reception were: Miss Adeline Farrel, San Mateo; Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Morris, Forest; Jacob Deal, Forest; William Brady, Georgetown; Mr. and Mrs. F. Roy, Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. J. Herndon, Oakland; Mrs. Al Springmyer, Richmond; Mrs. R. Moyle, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. C. Bishop, Mineral Springs; Mr. and Mrs. S. Foreman, Palo Alto; Mr. and Mrs. C. McQuay, Freestone; Mr. and Mrs. M. Roberts, Berkeley; Mr. and Mrs. R. Judd, Alameda; Mr. and Mrs. W. Macguire, Twain Harte; Mr. E. Foreman, Palo Alto.
